Washington, August 12.—Senator Daniel made another long and interesting tariff peech in the Senate to-day. He addressed nself particularly to the question of tin plate, and showed that the attempt of the Finance Committee to increase the duty consuming classes, and especially the farmers. He went into the subject of the consuming classes having the right to buy worse he made the bill which he helped to frame. It was plainly manifest that Senator Hiscock felt that the attack of Senator Daniel would have great effect throughout the country, and he therefore tried to refute the argument, but to little effect.

This is the second tariff speech that Senator Daniel has made within a week, and he has contributed much to the arguments that have been submitted in opposition to the pending unjust and sectional bill.

Just how long the tariff discussion will continue no one seems to know definitely.

THE BAYONET BILL. Senator Quay's Resolution to Carry It Over-The Bill Dead in Effect. [Special telegram to the Dispatch.] [Special telegram to the Dispatch.]

Washington, D. C., August 12.—The resolution offered in the Senate late this evening by Senator Quay, providing in effect for the carrying over of the force bill until the next session of Congress, confirms the information sent the Dispatch about two weeks ago that the Republicans would not press the measure in the Senate this session. Mr. Quay is a keen politician, and he knows that it is not good policy to pass the force bill at this time, even if it could be done without jeopardizing the chances of the tariff and the river and harbor bills.

THE EASIEST WAY OUT.

The prevailing opinion is that it will be acceptable to the Democrats, and the probabilities are that a majority of the Republicans will favor its adoption as the easiest and quickest way out of a very embarrassing situation at such a late stage of the session. The Republicans are expected to hold a cancus to-morrow, and then the matter will be fully discussed. THE EASIEST WAY OUT.

matter will be fully discussed.

LET THEM GO HOME.

It is understood that Mr. Quay drafted his resolution two or three days ago and he has consulted even many of the Republicans who are rampant advocates of the force oill, and he has insisted that it is essential to the welfare of the Republicans that Congress should soon adjourn so that the Republican representatives whose seats are in danger can go to their districts and commence their campaigns.

THE BILL CAN'T PASS.

THE BILL CAN'T PASS. THE BILL CAN'T PASS.

Boss Reed will be very mad at this turn of affairs, and he may even try to prevent the proposed early adjournment of Congress, but even should the bill ever pass the Senate it is doubtful if it could be forced through the House with the Senate amendments, as many of the prominent Hepublicans in the House admit they did wrong in voting for it in the first place. It certainly looks as if the last nail had been driven in the coffin of the force bill so far as the present session of Congress is concerned.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing has been employed night and day with an extra force making the new Treasury notes required by the bill, but so far the printing has been confined to notes of the denominations of $1,000 and $10. Nineteen milhon dollars in these notes were turned over to Treasurer Huston to-day to receive the impression of the Treasury seal, without which they are of no value. Washington, August 12.—Accompanying the lottery bill presented to the Senate today was a letter dated July 21st from Atterney-General Miller giving an opinion upon other anti-lottery bills before the committee. The Attorney-Goneral thinks there can be no question of the power of Congress to make the mailing of lottery letters and circulars a continuous offence to and including the place of delivery, or at least there can be no question that it is competent for Congress to make the offence punishable as well in the district in which the post-office of destination is situated as that in which the unlawful matter is mailed.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the Palliser case is directly in point. It is generally believed on the Republican side of the House that a special order will be made setting apart Saturday next for the consideration of the anti-lottery bill. Every effort is being made to secure the presence of every member on that day.

in a straight line. The largest post in the line was Post No. 5, of Lynn, which numbered 725 men in line.

The president pand will be found effective in achieving the ends contemplated by all the well-regulated minds engaged in it only with a view to the good of the good cause of agriculture. There are some indications, however, that under the leadership of men of too ardent temper, the farmers may make the not uncommon mistake of going both too fast and too far—a suicidal course, certainly, especially in advance of that general if not universal appreciation of the merits of the movement which must necessarily ensue as an intelligent and dispassionate consideration of the great question in all its bearings is forced upon the minds of men of all classes and callings, who are as dependent upon agriculture as agriculture is upon them. Let the power of the farmer show itself, not in impulse, but in but in consistent and steady work, not in over-reaching efforts of ill-advised aggression, but in an intelligent demand of practicable means through legitimate measures; not in rushing like a mad mountain torrent or a tidal wave, to leave desolation behind it as a monument only of its strength and its wrath, but in swelling as the caim sea swells in the majesty of its might to all shores. The farmer must make no war upon the men of other vocations. All that is needed is for him to secure his own rights without trenching upon the rights of other people. The farmer must demand and command justice and fair dealing, nothing more nothing less. Under the guidance of true wisdom this great movement of the farmers cannot but be productive of intemperate counsels it may fall back upon itself, leaving the farmer like the rider of a rearing horse that has tumbled over on him.

New Features in Postal-Cards.

New Features in Postal-Cards.

[New York Tritune.]

We hope that none of our readers failed to read the dispatch printed in yesterday's tribune about the new postal card "to be used by women." It is well to know what a thoughtful Government is doing for us. There is also, it appears from the dispatch, to be a business-men's postal card, giving us three sizes and kinds, the present well-known card, the women's card, one third smaller, of pearl-gray bristol board, and the business-men's card, one third larger, of stout manilla. Here we have the big manilla for the business-man, the plain card for the plain man, and the scented bristol for the young lady; and we ought to be happy.

We suppose, however, that this is only the beginning. Women, being smaller than men as a general thing, they, of course, should have a smaller postal card. There will soon be a children's card without doubt, graded in size for different ages. We shall read in the postal guide: "For children twelve to sixteen use No. 4: eight to twelve, No. 3; four to eight. No. 2: infants, No. 1. Repeat as often as necessary." We do not know what the regulations concerning the new cards will be, but it seems to us that a woman who weighs over 150 pounds, say, should be allowed to buy and use the common card, while a lady so fortunate, or unfortunate, as to impress the scales to the extent of 200 pounds should have the right to use the business-men's card. The regulations will undoubtedly be given to the public with the first lot of the new cards. Now that the plain of suiting the card to the person has been adopted by the Government, who can say where it will end? Fat men who weigh over 250 pounds may yet demand and get a postal-card as big as a pine shingle. Our colored friend and brother may some day be required to use a dark-brown postal-card. The nation's ward who is drawing the rations that the agent has left him on the far western reservations will make his untutored hieroglyphics on the backs of copper-colored postal-cards. AN EARLY BEGINNING. As early as 6 o'clock many veterans were already about the streets, and crowds of people had began to arrive in town and to appear upon the thoroughfares in holiday attire. All regular trains and many special ones arrived, bringing more than their quotas of passengers, and with the veterans and their families, the estimate that 100,000 strangers will be in the city to-day does not seem large. The police and signalling arrangements are perfect, and everything points to a most successful demonstration.

From present appearances there are satisfactory reasons for expecting a gratifying increase of the Democratic vote in Virginia this fall as compared with that of the last congressional election. But from present appearances, too, there is some ground for apprehension that there may be serious disturbance and discord in the party at no distant day, unless great care be taken by the best men with the big agricultural interests behind them, to guard and guide the great farmers' movement, so that it may not bring about its own discomfiture and at the same time clear the way for the imperial Republicans to bring their wooden horse into Troy. For years I have been earnestly observing the unfavorable conditions into which the farmer.
